Beware Of Comrades Bearing Monkey Wrenches

In his speech to the Slovenian aktiv  President Tito praised the Slovenes for having taken a "very firm course" to consolidate the party and was "very pleased" that accounts had been settled so "energetically" with various technocratic, and bureaucratic elements. Lest the Republic party let down its guard, however, he warned that everything had not been completed. Tito warned of those who will resist, of those who will again "raise their heads" and throw "monkey wrenches." On the whole, Tito seemed to express satisfaction with the progress of his drive to re-centralize the party.
